Take the first step into an education career with this entry-level course, offering an accessible starting point for those exploring a career in industries such as early childhood, school-based education support, school age education and care, or even future pathways into teaching.

This course provides foundational knowledge to understand how learning environments operate and what's required to support children and young people effectively. Throughout the course, learners build core skills in inclusive practice, behaviour guidance, and age-appropriate communication. It also introduces key concepts in educational theory to help participants understand how children develop, learn, and respond to different approaches.

By offering a structured introduction to these essential areas, the course prepares learners for meaningful roles within educational settings and can act as a stepping stone toward further study or higher-level qualifications in the broader education sector.

Future Articulation Opportunities
